OF the Subject of the following Work, it may be proper to observe, LAVENHAM is a market and clothing Town, near Long Melford, in the County of Suffolk. The Church, situated on a rising ground, is justly esteemed the finest specimen of Gothic Architecture in the county. It was built by the Veres, Earls of Oxford, in conjunction with the Springes, a rich clothing family, about the close of the fifteenth century, and the Pews of these families are finished pieces of Gothic work, in wood; the Oxford Pew is now much decayed. The Porch adorned with the Vere quarterings, and erected by John, the 14th Earl, before 1520, is an elegant building, as is the Tower or Steeple, 141 feet high, on which are the arms of his predecessors. The Church is 156 feet long and 68 feet wide. The Windows and various parts of the Church are adorned with many coats of arms. It is built chiefly with free-stone, the rest is of flint-work. The ornaments are all elegantly cut, and boldly relieved.

These Sketches, taken about 1790, originally for the amusement of an Artist who then resided at Lavenham, when the parts generally were in good repair, are now offered to the Public, as a set of choice examples of Gothic Ornaments, which may tend to guide the taste and to form the judgment of those who study this style of Architecture, professionally, or as an amusement.
